The Utah Section of the Society for Range Management will be holding their annual tour on June 25-26. The tour will begin in the Strawberry Valley area at 9:30 a.m. on Thursday, June 23 and end in Browns Park about 4 p.m. Friday, June 26.

Thursday's agenda will include stops to view and discuss grazing, wildlife and fish management, soil and watershed improvements and the Central Utah Project. A visit to the Upper Stillwater dam construction site is planned.

Friday's tour will start at 8 a.m., leaving from the Forest Service Office. Stops will include Chevron Resource's phosphate operations, grazing management and improvements on Diamond Mountain, ricket and grasshopper problems, fisheries improvements on Diamond Mountain, livestock and wildlife improvements and management practices in the Taylor Flat and Browns Park areas.

The Society for Range Management is an international organization which promotes the art and science of proper rangeland management. Approximately 60 individuals from Utah and surrounding states are expected to attend. Ranchers, livestock persons, and other individuals are invited to participate in the tours. A steak fry and program are planned for Thursday evening at the Elton Pavilion in Vernal.

Persons needing more information on the events can call Steve Smith at 654-0470, or Dan Daniels at 654-0470, or Ron Tolman at 789-12362. 789-6144 ruffed grouse, beaver, muskrat, cottontail rabbit, snowshoe hare and cougar. Elk herds may relocate to Dutch Canyon as a result of the Jordanelle and Mayflower projects. This would create a high priority year round and critical winter range for elk.

Mountain goats may also be moving into the Bald Mountain area of Dutch Canyon. The streams are an important source and support a variety of fish. The canyon has a variety of life zones and ecosystems from sage brush, oak and cottonwood to aspen, spruce and fir.

The DWR study concluded that Dutch Canyon's ecosystem is directly affected by recreational and other controlled burn is planned for one area infested with thick, noxious oak brush. This area will be replaced with a desirable grass that will be beneficial to the range quality.

The DWR and the Division of Parks and Recreation both feel that this "treasure" is definitely endangered and a high priority area for proper and close management. The land, water and wildlife need to be protected and multiple-use has to be closely monitored. The changes that come in Dutch Canyon will hopefully be understood. Through communication, we hope this can be accomplished.

Junior Golfers Complete State Golf Tour

Wasatch Mountain State Park junior golfers recently completed two successful weeks on the Junior State Golf Tour.

On June 11-12, Joseph Summerhays won the 14-15 year old division of the Tri-City G-I Insurance Open. He led the field by nine shots. Sharon Probst placed fourth in her age division of 15-17 year old girls. Both shot excellent rounds on the difficult Tri-City course.

Last week several Wasatch junior golfers attempted to qualify for the Junior World Championship held in San Diego. Those who qualified will participate with golfers from every state and free nation.

Joseph Summerhays, 15, qualified in the tough 15-17 year old division. He also won the 14-15 year old group with scores of 78, 74, and 77. Sharon Probst qualified in the 15-17 year old girls. She shot the lights out of the Bonneville course on Thursday. William Summerhays will play in the 13-14 division and Susanna Summerhays will join the 11-12 year old girls in San Diego.

Brandon Bonner won the 12-13 age in the tournament. He won the right to go to Junior World, but he has prior commitments. The low qualifier earns $200 for the trip. Brandon has earned the money every year he has played. His scores were 82, 83, and 77.

Six-year-old Carrie Summerhays won the 10 and under girls division with scores of 84 and 75 at the Copper Club and Nibley golf course.

The junior golfers in Wasatch County want to thank Bruce Summerhays and Bryan Morgan for all their help and encouragement. They feel very fortunate to live in a place that offers such excellent teachers and busy men willing to work with youth.
